Fri. Thou fond mad man, heare me a little speake.
Ro. O thou wilt speake againe of banishment.
Fri. Ile giue thee armour to keepe off that word,
Aduersities sweet milke, Philosophie,
To comfort thee though thou art banished.
Ro. Yet banished? hang vp Philosophie,
Vnlesse Philosophie can make a Iuliet,
Displant a Towne, reuerse a Princes doome,
It helpes not, it preuailes not, talke no more.
Fri. O then I see, that mad men haue no eares.
Ro. How should they, when wise men haue no eyes.
Fri. Let me dispute with thee of thy estate.
Ro. Thou canst not speake of that thou dost not feele,
Wert thou as young as I, Iuliet thy loue,
An houre but married, Tibalt murdered,
Doting like me, and like me banished,
Then mightest thou speake,
Then mightest thou teare thy haire,
And fall vpon the ground as I doe now,
Taking the measure of an vnmade graue.

Nurse knocks.

Fri. Arise, one knocks, good Romeo hide thy selfe,
Ro. Not I, vnlesse the breath of heart-sicke groanes
Mist-like infold me from the search of eyes.

Knocke.

Fri. Harke how they knocke (who's there) Romeo arise,
Thou wilt be taken (stay awhile) stand vp.

Knocke againe.

Run to my studie (by and by) Gods will,
What simplenesse is this: I come, I come.

Knocke.

Who knocks so hard? whence come you? what's your will?

Enter Nurse.

Nur. Let me come in, and you shall know my errand:
I come from Lady Iuliet.
Fri. Welcome then.
Nur. O holy Frier, O tell me holy Frier,

Where's my Ladies Lord, where's Rome
Fri. There on the ground,
With his owne teares made drunke.
